Kindle Fire HD/HDX Mobile App Instructions
The Kindle Fire HD/HDX mobile app is available through a special download link. The link is available on your library collection site in the footer, in Help, and on checkout screens.
Loading the Zinio app on a Kindle Fire HD/HDX device.

Kindle Fire devices are compatible with your Zinio for Libraries checked-out magazines. Your device needs to be set up to download a special app found outside of the Kindle App Store.

Set Up Your Kindle Fire

1. From the home screen, tap the top of the screen. The top menu will appear. Select the ‘More’ icon.

2. The Settings menu displays. Select Device.

3. The Device menu displays. Toggle On to Allow Installation of Applications from unknown sources.

4. When the toggle is On, press the home (house) icon to go back to the main home screen.

Now you are ready to go to your library collection in your Silk browser to browse and check out magazines.

Saving Stream Fish

BY PATRICIA LEMONDES

Since the early 1990s ichthyologists J. R. Howe and Pat Baines have splashed through southeastern U.S. creeks and rivers hunting for tiny surcies. Because of chemical pollution, silt, and habitat loss, many species of small, native fish—some found in single creeks—have nearly vanished from river systems. Today the nonprofit St. Paul-based Conservation Fisheries, Inc., works in ten states to preserve and propagate 63 rare species.

From a few fish and eggs, CFI raises hatchlings of threatened species, then places the species’ streams of origin or other hospitable waters. For example: To stem the spotted chub in the Tennessee River system, CFI spent years introducing hatchlings are now reproducing in the wild.

CFI is keeping a few rare fish “as an ark population, because there’s no suitable place to put them back,” Howe says. CFI’s last chucky madtom died in 2008, and since then catfish have not been seen in the wild. “We hope they’re still out there,” he says, “not looking good.”
